What's New in 1.5.2

Strikethrough & underline

Two new text-markup tools join the highlighter. Drag across text to strike it out or underline it. Each tool keeps its own color and opacity and flattens cleanly into the saved PDF.

Print positioning & exact scaling

The print dialog now places the page anywhere on the sheet (center, edges, or corners) and prints at an exact scale: Fit to page, Actual size 100%, or a custom percentage with decimals, all with a live preview.

Stamp numbers onto every page with a start value, a format such as {n} or Page {n} of {N}, a position, and a font size. Stamps flatten into the document and the whole run is a single undo.

One-click self-update

When a newer release is available, KillerPDF can download, verify, and reinstall it straight from the About dialog.

Two more languages

Bengali and Turkish join English, Spanish, and Traditional Chinese. Five fully localized interfaces, switchable in Settings.

Refreshed interface

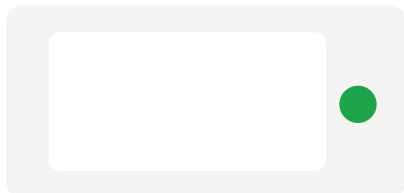

Rounded window corners, subtle film grain across the surfaces, drop shadows on icons and panels, per-theme scrollbars, and the Blood, Greed, and Cyanotic themes reworked to darker chrome with a lighter document pane.

Six Beautiful Themes

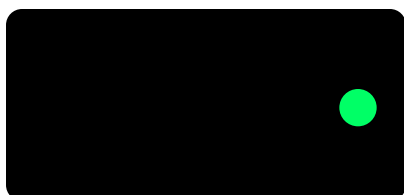

Dark

The default. Charcoal chrome with a lighter document pane and crisp green accents.

Light

A clean, bright workspace for daylight work, with the same green accents on a soft gray frame.

High Contrast

Pure black chrome with bright green accents for maximum legibility and accessibility.

Blood

Dark maroon chrome over a lighter maroon page, finished with warm cream-orange accents.

Greed

Dark emerald chrome over a lighter green page, with gold-cream accents.

Cyanotic

Dark blue-teal chrome over a lighter teal page, cooled with pale cream accents.
